A CORNER OF THE CAMPUS

Southern Summer School for Women Workers in Industry

Burnsville

July 11 - August 23, 1929

North Carolina
HISTORY

For the past two summers the Southern Summer School for Women Workers in Industry has been conducted by an independent committee of southern workers and others interested in Workers' Education. Twenty-five industrial women from eight Southern States have attended the first two sessions. The third session will be held at Burnsville, N. C., July 11 to August 23, 1929.

LOCATION

Burnsville is located on the Appalachian Scenic Highway, between Asheville, N. C. and Johnson City, Tenn., in the heart of the mountains. Elevation 3,000 feet. It is 38 miles from Asheville and 81 miles from Johnson City. Travelers from the north may go to Burnsville via bus from Johnson City; from the east via bus from Spruce Pine or Marion, N. C.; from the south via bus from Asheville, N. C. Carolina New College offers renovated dormitories, little theatre, library, class rooms and swimming pool. It is in no way connected with the administration of the Summer School.

COURSE OF STUDY

Economics, English Composition, Public Speaking, Dramatics and Health Education are among the subjects studied. By means of small discussion groups, individual conferences, and close correlation between the different subjects, the course is adapted to the needs and experience of each individual student.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

A scholarship of $175.00 is granted to each student. This covers tuition and living expenses including laundry. With few exceptions this amount must be raised in the community from which the student comes. Each student should have a small fund for supplies.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Age limit, 18 to 35 years.
Schooling through the sixth grade. Two years' experience in industry. Satisfactory health examination.
Forty students will be admitted in 1929.

DIRECTIONS FOR APPLYING

Fill out application blank and mail to Louise Leonard, Director, Southern Summer School, 209 West Madison Street, Baltimore, Md., before April 1.
